Sportsmen's Meeting Set

Randall County sportsmen are expected to attend the Texas Game and Fish Commission's regulatory authority meeting for Randall County June 13 in the commissioner's courtroom in the Randall County courthouse annex. Time of the meeting is set at 8 p.m.

Game commission officials are expected to hear public comment of existing and changing game and fish laws and regulations as they apply to Randall County.

Information and comments made at the meeting are expected to have an effect on the opening and closing dates for game seasons, the setting of game and bag limits, and the means and methods of taking fish and game in the county.

Similar meetings will be held in all the Panahndle counties under the regulatory authority of the Texas Game and Fish Commission.

Class Gift Presented

Davis Price, senior class president, presented the Senior gift to Canyon High School at the final senior assembly held last Friday afternoon.

Accepting the stereo HiFi set for the school was James E. Miller, principal of Canyon High School.

Jim Whinnery called the assembly to order. Processional music was provided by Mrs. Lee Foster. The pledge of allegiance was given by Harry Lisle.

Davis Price introduced the senior class members to the underclassmen.

The class history was given by Frances Kiker and Bob Haggard. Reading the class will were Elaine Loudder and Tim White. The class prophecy was presented by Maggie Stephens and Bill Phillips. Kay Fain led the group in singing the Canyon School Song.

The Lord's Prayer was given by Joe A. Gibson, superintendent of Canyon Schools, as the assembly closed.

Drouth Breaking Rain Here

"It broke the drouth," was the comment heard Wednesday morning after rains covered the area Tuesday afternoon and evening.

Even though Canyon didn't receive the most rain, some places in the area got more than two inches. Little, if any, hail was reported in the Canyon area.

The rains Tuesday averaged about 1.7 inches for the day. More rains were expected Wednesday evening.

The West Texas University weather station received 1.67 inches Tuesday, according to Dr. M. B. Measamer, who is responsible for the station. The 1.67 inches was as of 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The rain amounted to more moisture than had fallen during any single month since August of 1962, he said. It also exceeded the 1.53 inches total precipitation recorded at the station since January prior to Tuesdays downpour.

The year's total rainfall comes to 4.91 inches as of Tuesday night. "Still far below the ten year average for the period," he said.

County agent John Brazzil said the rain was a long slow and gentle one that soaked into the ground, allowing farmers to shut off their irrigation wells and prepare for spring planting as soon as the topsoil dries

Kolander Says Wheel Required

Juror Selection Hit

Could Delay Court Here Several Months

Randall County's jury selection method brought about a legal snag that could cause the wheels of justice to grind to a halt here in both the county and district courts.

Jerry Kolander, representing a defendant charged with driving while intoxicated, moved that the jury in the case be discharged because they were improperly selected.

Kolander, former judge of the domestic relations court in Amarillo and now a practicing attorney, cited article 2094 of Texas Civil Statutes as grounds for his motion. The article stipulates that counties with a town or towns of more than 18,000 population at the last taking of the federal census select jurors by the jury wheel method.

Until now Randall County jurors have been selected by the jury commission method.

In his motion Kolander noted that the Randall County portion of Amarillo came to 25,103 in 1960 when the last federal census was taken. The attorney produced a document from the US Bureau of Commerce to substantiate his claim.

District Attorney Truett Hull agreed with the validity of the defense attorney's motion and Judge Wayland Angel dismissed the jury.

The problem is a tricky one. Neither Hull, Kolander nor Judge Angel is certain that the statute refers to segments of cities spilling over into adjoining counties as in the case of Amarillo. Amarillo's city offices are located in Potter County.

The statute cited by Kolander further stipulates that juries must be selected between Aug. 1 and Aug. 15.

Hull said the court would be happy to use the jury wheel system but if Amarillo does not legally constitute a city in Randall County, it would be an error to use any method other than the jury commission method now being employed.

To go either way could cause reversible error in several important trials, both criminal and civil, coming up in county and district court here within the next few months, Hull pointed out.

Hull called J. C. Davis, assistant attorney general. Davis didn't know offhand which course to take. He suggested legislation to lay down a clear-cut path to follow. There were a few bad moments when Hull realized that the legislature would adjourn Friday.

This brought up an unhappy prospect of being neither able to select jurors nor try cases until Aug. 1, 1964.

Hull learned that Tom Mor

Buddy Poppy Sale Slated

Boy Scouts of Troop 31 will be selling Buddy Poppies this week end under sponsorship of Canyon Veterans of Foreign Wars Post.

Jesse Bewley, post commander, pointed out that proceeds from the sale will be used in furthering work of the local post and its auxiliary.

A percentage will go to the Scout troop. Some of the money will go to the disabled veterans who made the artificial poppies.

One of the principal goals of the local post is rehabilitation of disabled veterans, according to Commander Bewley.

Mayor Delbert Lowes endorsed the poppy sale and urged Canyon people to buy "Buddy Poppies" this week end.

Contract On Paving Is Awarded

Canyon city commission heard and accepted the low bid of Frank B. Hodges Contractors Inc., of Lubbock, Texas, for the new paving of 4 blocks and approximately 50,000 square yards of sealcoating on Canyon streets.

New paving includes one block on Conner Drive between Thompson and Lair Lanes; two blocks of Hillcrest Drive between 15th and 17th Streets and one block on 17th Street between 9th Avenue and Hillcrest Drive.

The low bid was for $1.91 per linear foot for the paving and 11¢ per square yard for the sealcoating.

The 1963 edition, along with the 1962-63 editions of the Prairie, the University paper, won the two top awards in this year's Texas Intercollegiate Press Association competitions for student journalistic achievements. Randall Farmers Blast Program In Referendum

Randall County wheat producers, like farmers across the nation's wheat belt, voted an overwhelming "no" in the wheat marketing quota referendum Tuesday.

Randall County returns complete showed 442 no votes and 389 yes votes.

The proposition was crushed across the nation.

Returns at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday showed 52.21 percent of the nation's wheat producers voted no. A two-thirds majority of yes votes would have been required for the proposition to carry.

The final count in votes for the nation was 597,776 no votes and 547,151 yes votes.

Here's how Randall County voted box by box. In community A at the ASCS office, the vote was 113 yes and 145 no. In community B at Ralph Switch there were 74 yes votes and 52 no votes.

At community C at Jowell School, there were 37 yes votes and 30 no. In community D, Knights of Columbus Hall at Umbarger the yes vote was 50 and the no vote was 46.

In community E, John Plank's barn, the yes vote was 56 and the no vote 29. In community F, Askco Steel Building Company in South Amarillo, the yes vote was 39 and the no vote 110. In community G, Harold Ladehoff's old home, the yes vote was 20 and the no vote 30.

Washington sources Wednesday said congressmen were swamped with new proposals. However, there was growing opinion that there would be no new wheat legislation forth coming at the present time.

Congressman Walter Rogers was reported to have said he believes there will be no new law enacted by Congress this year.

"I would like to see a free market given a chance to work," Congressman Rogers was quoted as having said.

Band Director Is Rehired By Board

Canyon school trustees Tuesday night renewed the contract of Band Director Lee Boyd Montgomery.

The sweepstake-winning band director's salary was made contingent upon his completing requirements by August for a master's degree.

The board also renewed contracts for Mackey Wheatley, high school science teacher, and Rodney Myrick vocational agriculture instructor.

Resignations of four teachers were accepted formally. They include Mrs. Madge Culberson, special education, who is retiring; Mrs. Nancy J. Hill, junior high school teacher; Charlie Chambless, assistant coach; and Bobby Byrd, physical education teacher in the elementary school.

A year's leave of absence was granted to Mrs. Charlotte Brantley. Her husband, Royal Brantley, will study for his doctorate at Indiana University.

E. T. Cummings was retained to audit the school's books again this year. His fee was set at $600.

A salary increase of $381 a year for Elementary Principal Oscar Hinger was approved. The salary of Leon Bagwell, vocational agriculture instructor, was raised $400 a year. Salary raises of $250 each were granted to Head Coach E. J. Webb and to Basketball Coach

Rockey Cating On USS Constellation

Rockey W. Cating, radarman third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean B. Lowes of Canyon was advanced in rate May 16 while serving aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Constellation.

Promotion is the result of passing Navywide competitive examinations after meeting Professional and military requirements.

FROM THE CANYON RIM

In the backwash of the wheat referendum a lot of folks are trying to figure out why the ballot went the way it did.

We think the biggest factor was the desire of the American farmer to maintain his freedom. The position of the Department of Agriculture became alarmingly clear to many here who had not given it much thought when they received an "interchange of acreage" letter from the ASCS office.

In a letter dated May 17 here at Canyon, a farmer friend of ours received information that his wheat and feed grain acreage would be interchangeable if the marketing quotas on wheat were approved Tuesday.

In other words, if a farmer had an allotment of 400 acres of feed grain and a wheat allotment of 15 acres, he could plant 415 acres of wheat if he so desired and still be in compliance.

What a piece of bait to dangle before the farmers four days before the referendum!

What a riduculous way to control a wheat surplus!

The letter noted that legislation authorizing the acreage interchange was passed by Congress. The farmer who gave us a copy of his letter said he looked upon it as a bribe to vote yes.

Never before in our memory has a government agency taken such an active part in behalf of an election on a program it is supposed to administer.

Government officials in threatening tones warned farmers that a yes vote would mean $2 wheat while a no vote would mean $1 wheat.

The interchange of acreage letter actually let the cat out of the bag. It indicated no real desire on the part of the secretary of agriculture to control a wheat surplus.

Control over this country's ability to produce food and fiber was what the secretary was really asking and the American farmer answered "NO" emphatically and decisively.

Wheat farmers acted at grave economic risk to themselves and their families. Possibly there will be retaliation from the administration as was threatened in the famous steel price incident. We do not know and neither did the farmers who voted down the proposed program.

We're reminded of another farmer uprising almost two centuries ago. The merchants of Boston, Philadelphia and New York probably would still be bowing before a king had it not been for a bunch of farmers who by a "rude bridge" at Concord fired the shot heard round the world.

We thank God for those farmers at Concord. We thank God for the wheat farmers who Tuesday echoed the emblem on the Rattle Snake banner of their Revolutionary predecessors, "Don't Tread On Me."

Hilltop Views

Two short poems by Don Blanding, the Vagabond poet, are enough for today's column. His first subject is

No Time For Pessimists
And Other Termites

The pessimist with termite jaws
Gnaws and gnaws, and gnaws and g-n-a-w-s,
At faith and hope and love and laws
He gnaws and gnaws and g-n-a-w-s because
From this agnawing trait he draws
His joy in life. Like busy saws
His gnawing jaws saw holes and flaws,
And shred the threads of any cause
To webs of ragged tattered gauze.
He greets bad news with glad applause
And thrives on it. With loud guffaws
He jerks the beard from Santa Claus.
Because he gnaws without a pause
He's worse than moths.

An optimistic friend insists
That cynics and psychiatrists,
Defeatists, isolationists
And others with such mental twists
Are gnawseating pest-imists.

I hope I never get to be one.

Another piece of wisdom by the same author is:

What Can I Do?

If every little grain of sand
That goes to make this gracious land
Should say, "I am so very small
I won't be missed at all--, at all.
And I am tired. I shall rest."
Then yielded to the clutching crest
Of waves and slipped into the sea,
How very soon the time would be
When there would be no land or sand,
Just barren sea on every hand.

A grain of sand--that's I--that's you.
Each with his little bit to do.
Though muscles ache and arches throb
We have to stay right on the job
And be those loyal grains of sand
That go to make our gracious land.

Brazzil said the amount of rain received in the area is just what the farmers needed but it won't affect wheat crops too much except to make the yields a little higher per acre.

"The big difference will be in the range and grasslands," he said. "It was a gentle rain with most of it going into the ground. The range will begin to green up in just a few days. We've been irrigating since winter and this rain will take the drain off the water table for awhile, Brazzil said.

Brazzil said the area needs another rain to fill in behind this one, adding that some parts of the area received very little moisture.

The country around Friona received some 4 inches of rain, according to reports. Much of this moisture drains into the Friona Draw which empties into Buffalo Lake. A rise of a foot or more in the Buffalo Lake level should start off the spring spawning of the crappie and carp in the lake.

Local Scouts Will Attend World Meet

Six Canyon boys are members of Troop 10 which will attend the World Jamboree to be held in Marathon, Greece, during the last of the summer.

The boys who will attend are Kenneth Crossland, Richard "Dick" White, George Cox, Clifford Sherrod, Bill Long, and Randy Warren. They attended the first troop meeting for their group, which was held at the South Plains Scout Office in Lubbock, Sunday afternoon.

Canyon ranked first in the nation with the largest number of boys eligible to attend the event this summer in Greece. The boys had a number of requirements to meet, and the first ones who passed were chosen for the trip. Other area towns will be represented on the tour with five boys attending from Pampa, four from Midland, and three from Lubbock to help complete the group of 33 who will attend as the "Western Ridge Scout Troop" from Texas.

A teacher from the Lubbock school system spoke to the boys at the meeting on the Greek language, food and on buildings that they would especially enjoy seeing. The teacher's parents live in Greece and she will make a trip home this summer. She agreed to visit with the troop while they are in Greece.

A. W. "Gus" Benner of Lubbock will serve as the Scoutmaster of the troop for their tour of Greece. He will be assisted by Bill Gething of Pampa, and Gerald Cole of Midland.

Troop 10 will have a meeting at the Holiday Inn Motel in Dallas on July 17 prior to their jet flight to New York City, where they will leave for the tour. The boys will begin their tour at Geneva, Switzerland, and continue their travels throughout Greece during their stay.

WT Budget Is Hiked

Members of West Texas State University faculty will get pay raises amounting to about 6.2 percent as a result of an increase in funds allotted the school.

Reports from Austin this week stated that the institution here will receive a $600,000 increase in funds for the next two years from the state budget.

Appropriations for the university from general revenue will total $3,694,048 in the two years beginning next Sept. 1, compared with $3,016,426 in the current bienium.

Teachers will get an average increase of about $400 per year. Dr. James P. Cornette's salary will be boosted from $13,500 a year to $15,000, according to the report.

The total for teaching salaries will be increased from $1,012,000 this year to $1,249,907 for each year of the coming bienium.

Other increases are in funds for library books and periodicals, raised from $34,000 to $42,000 per year; organized research, up from $14,568 this year to $16,378 in each of the next two years, and extension and public service, up from $15,000 to $21,050 per year.

J. H. Rose from Beverly Hills, California, and John Schram from Flagstaff, Arizona visited last week with Mrs. W. G. Rose and Kelly.

Mr. Schram also visited with his sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Crowley.

during the past 5 years.

During that time the cemetery has been transformed into one of the most beautiful in the Panhandle. LaGrone says it is the Panhandle's oldest cemetery still in use.

Many veterans of the war between the states are interred there. Canyon was once a convention site for Confederate veterans.

Dreamland Cemetery is operated by a board of directors. President is Mrs. R A. Neblett. Other officers include Clarence Thompson, vice-president; Levi Cole, treasurer; and A. W. Lair, counselor. Additional members of the board include Leige Frieze, Mitchell Jones, Mrs. Clay Cooper, Bernard Warren, E. E. Plank, Gwen McFarland and Mrs. Clyde Warwick. Honorary board members are Mrs. Ed Harrell and T. C. Thompson.

Two memorials have been contributed to the cemetery in recent years. Mrs. Ed Harrell donated a chapel and chimes. Mrs. C. R. Burrow gave a feature depicting an open Bible with the Lord's Prayer inscribed.

Also during the past five years most of the streets in the cemetery have been paved, an equipment house constructed, an irrigation system installed and considerable equipment purchased for care of the cemetery.

LaGrone said a program of maintenance and perpetual care is being followed.

"Property owners who have not participated in the perpetual care program are invited to visit the cemetery and see the improvement as well as the need for carrying on the program," LaGrone said.

LaGrone pointed out that all property now being sold is sold with provision for perpetual care.

The cemetery association office is located at LaGrone Funeral Chapel.

Vandals Hit Road Signs

State and county lawenforcement officers in Randall County are combining forces in an effort to halt theft and vandalism of state and county highway markers and signs, according to W. A. "Bill" Wilson, Randall County justice of the peace.

Vandals have removed and destroyed dozens of highway signs, culvert and intersection markers in Randall County along state and county roads.

On just one week end, May 4 and 5, vandals removed 21 culvert markers from state farm to market road 1714 between Canyon and Buffalo Lake Wildlife Refuge.

Justice of the peace Wilson said Wednesday, he believes the culvert markers were taken by picnickers for firewood at Buffalo Lake.

Wilson said vandals have also removed seven 4 inch by 4 inch sign posts from the Canyon area. Especially hard hit was the Washington Street and Palo Duro Road intersection. Removed signs includes a stop sign, a warning to stop sign, a Palo Duro Canyon State Park sign and other highway aids.

A meeting in the Randall County courthouse was recently held by the county judge, district attorney, sheriff and Wilson to see what could be done to ease the situation.

"We assure that anyone caught in possession of these signs or posts will be filed on for theft or receiving and concealing stolen property. We will give the maximum penalty as provided by law, Wilson said.

The people are asked to cooperate with the law enforcement agencies by reporting the license numbers and car description of anyone seen tampering with or removing road signs, Wilson said.

"We ask the cooperation of all parents that any road signs their children may have picked up be returned to the Texas Highway Department or to the Randall County sheriff's department in Canyon. Otherwise legal action will be taken," Wilson said.

ris, president of the Potter County Bar Association, had contacted Senator Grady Hazlewood on the matter about a month ago.

Hull finally got in touch with Senator Hazlewood by phone in Austin and much to his relief learned that a permissive bill already has passed both houses and has been on Governor Connally's desk for the past week. Hull said it is his understanding that this bill, if it becomes law, will allow commissioners courts in counties such as Randall to decide how jurors will be selected.

Judge Angel said validity of cases tried here prior to this time will not be affected since the question has not arisen in court before now.

AROUND THE TOWN

(With Kids)

Gene Morrison went to Denver City Friday, May 10, to visit his grandmother. He had lots of fun and as he was coming back, he passed through Central City.

Central City used to be a small mining town. There are little sprinkles of gold dust here and there in the streets. There is a slab of gold as a tribute to what the town once was.

At the last Student Council meeting we decided that we would probably drop the grass patrol and see how dependable the other children were. To close the year we ate some ice cream bars courtesy of Mr. Hinger.

Hey Kids! No more school. Now we're free to play baseball, go swimming, camping, or some other thing. I'll finally be having some gigantic columns this summer (I hope!) with everybody going camping and vacationing and everything.

The plants in the planter were bought for $22.50. They are Red Barbari, Keltli Juniper, Texas Honeysuckle and Globe Juniper. Many thanks to the people who donated to the plant fund.

Riddle

What flower describes what the professor did when he sat on a tack?

Answer to last week's riddle: Shoes.

This is one portion of more than 1700 pounds of carp taken from Buffalo Lake Tuesday and Wednesday with gill nets. The fish averaged above five pounds each. The netting was a survey by the Texas Game and Fish Commission to get an indication of carp populations in the lake prior to starting a carp control program at the end of the month and into early June. Carp are considered trash fish living in the lake at the expense of game fish.

Carp Infestation Said Heavy At BuffaloLake

BY JIM THOMAS

Carp, carp and more carp. That seems to be the outlook at Buffalo Lake according to netting surveys taken this week by the Texas Game and Fish Commission crews from the Canyon fish laboratory.

Tuesday morning and afternoon, Lonnie Peters and his crew set several hundred feet of large gill nets in various places in Buffalo Lake to see what they could come up with in the way of fish.

The results were carp, carp and more carp--and one little channel cat. The fish that were caught, except the catfish, were all above five and six pounds due to the large size of the gill net used.

This might mean that the majority of fish in that size range are carp. The net survey certainly seems to indicate that.

The game commission in cooperation with the biologists at the refuge, under the direction of Bob Brown and Lonnie Peters, are planning a control program designed to considerably lessen the reproduction and the total number of carp in Buffalo Lake.

When and if the carp spawn run starts towards the end of May or early June, the carp will start running up every creek, draw and gulley that has a few inches of water. They will try to lay their eggs on grasses and brush in shallow water where the males can come along and fertilize the eggs and also where the eggs won't be covered with silt washed in from above.

The idea will be to set up wire pens and traps, baited with something like soaked corn or dried bread crumbs. When the carp come into the traps they are killed, dipped out of the trap and carried off to be used for fertilizer, catfood or whatever.

Randall County sportsmen are expected to work with the biologists in the carp control program, helping with the actual killing, dipping and hauling of the big rough fish. It is thought that such rough fish as carp can destroy the game fish population of a body of water like Buffalo Lake in just a few years. Every effort towards control of the carp is that much gained in the way of game fishing in the lake.

The fish biologists are meeting with the sportsmen tonight at L. J. Witkowski's camping trailer store on 23rd Street in Canyon to discuss the carp control program and the ways area sportsmen can work with the biologists on the control program.

Good Crowd Attends FD Open House

More than 300 persons attended the Canyon Volunteer Fire Department's open house at the Canyon fire station Sunday afternoon.

Firemen put on a series of demonstrations for the visitors including the use of the deluge nozzle, capable of throwing more than 1200 gallons of water per minute on a fire.

Children were permitted to climb and play on all the fire units which were parked in the front of the fire station for the show. The children were especially pleased with the 1928 white Ford fire wagon the department keeps for parades.

Adults were impressed with the amount and the kind of fire fighting equipment the department had on display.

Citizens saw demonstrations of the department's new resuscitator which is carried along with the emergency unit on all its calls.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Joe Rice, Mrs. Bill Sternenberg, and Mrs. Jack Jennings. They also kept a register of all the visitors. Refreshments included Cokes, coffee, and cookies.

Canyon Boys To Attend Symposium

Canyon will have two representatives at the Third Texas Nuclear Science Symposium at the University of Texas from June 9th through 12th, it has been announced by Joe Gidden, District Manager for the Southwestern Public Service Company.

The student representatives at the Austin sessions will be Elmer Al Oberst and Davis Price.

Five hundred science students and teachers have been invited to the symposium to hear some of America's leading scientists bring them up to date on the latest developments in nuclear physics.

Burney Slack Randall Resident Since A Lad

BY GLENNA WILSON

Seeking stories of interest from early settlers in Randall county, one might easily pass by Burney Brice Slack, of 2400 8th Ave. This would probably be because Mr. Slack is not an elderly gentleman; yet, 61 of his 62 years have been spent in this county.

"I was just a yearling" is the way Burney describes his first appearance into this area. Born in the town of Windom in Fannin county, he still operates a farm and runs livestock on part of the land on which his grandfather prospected and bought, 6 miles south of Canyon, in 1902.

It was there, near Running Water road, west of the present highway on the headwaters of Hackberry Draw, that Burney's father built their first home; a half dug-out with a 14x16 room, and one bedroom built above. After the death of the grandfather, Burney moved with his family into the big house with his grandmother. The house was completed in 1906 and though it burned a few years ago, the sheds, corral, and windmill still stand just west of the railroad, that Mr. Slack declares he helped build.

"The railroad camp was about one mile from our place .....The dumps were built with mule teams.....There were about 60 workers.....It was my job to peddle eggs, butter, and fresh vegetables to these men."

Although Burney was a very young boy the night the first train steamed down that new track, he remembers vividly his granny waking him with "Wake up, boy! The train is bursting!" And indeed, to Burney, it appeared to be doing just that, as round a curve, its bright headlights flashed through the bedroom window.

Before the railroad was built, wagons freighted supplies from Lubbock to Canyon; wagons that were often loaded with hides, and Burney recalls his grandmother's sympathy with all the cows dying to share their hides.

One of his childhood pastimes was sitting in front of his home watching cattle being driven to market. "It sometimes took all day for a herd to pass," he remembers. He also remembers that when loaded supply wagons got stuck on the unpaved highway and because of heavy rains, had to be abandoned for as many as three weeks, never were any of the goods stolen.

When the Slack family moved to Randall county, they brought with them 3 train car loads of household goods, livestock, and cottonseed. Burney's father being the first to plant the crop in this county.

There were no trees.....no wood, but the Slack's and their neighbors burned cowchips and planted cottonwoods and locusts trees. "There was a time," Burney recalls, "when the town of Canyon was covered with locusts trees.....till the worms took over.....and the tall cottonwoods you see in the draws around the town, were planted there."

Children of pioneer parents were not privileged to attend summer camp but Burney likes to tell about a camping trip he took to New Mexico with an uncle, 3 teen-age cousins, and "a pair of wirey whitenosed mules" that, in his own words, "provided more excitement than a fast trip to Europe in a jet would likely create in the minds and memories of present day youngsters."

It was a late day in August, after crops were laid by, when the five travelers headed west in a covered wagon, well supplied with maize heads for the mules, and enough food for a three-day journey. Well on their way, with Burney and one cousin in the driver's "spring seat" up front, and the others reclining comfortably on a mattress in the back, after they had made camp the first night in Hereford, they felt unusually pround of their "highstepping mules" that seemed to be passing everything on the road, when, suddenly a freight train pulled up beside them and let-out a shriek of a whistle, that Burney declares has never been equaled.

Under cover of hissing steam, the runaway mules were soon brought to a halt astride the right-of-way fence, but not before the ricochet of passengers and supplies along the highway. Because of broken eggs and scattered food from this accident, and the misfortune of missing the right road, before reaching their destination, the campers found it vital to kill cottontails and borrow seasoning from stock salt, and cool beverage that flowed from scattered windmills.

On their return home they spent the last night at the stock pens in Hereford. After following the section line roads to Canyon, they crossed the railroad one mile west of the present Junior High building. Driving down 5th Ave. they passed a livery stable on the corner where Bellah's Super Market is now located.

Continuing east from the southeast corner of the Courthouse square, they passed 3 or 4 unpainted wood buildings on the west of the present Pioneer Gas building."

"In fact," remarked Burney, "I don't recall paint ever being applied to any of those old false front boxed wood buildings except for a painted saloon sign of two. This was known as "Smokey-Row" and was the beginning of "Canyon City" as the town was called in its early days."

The rather weary but well rewarded campers unhitched the mules from their covered wagon inside the wide gate of S. A. Shotwell's Wagon Yard and Feed Store, which was located in the space now occupied by LaGrone's Funeral Home.

When Burney Brice Slack graduated from Canyon High School in 1918 with a class of 8 members, he held a record of 4 years without being absent or tardy; This is more commendabel when one is aware that Burney rode his horse "Zero" from his home 6 miles south of town. "I was always halfway to school when the sun came up," he declares, and explained that in severe cold he ran along by the side of Zero to keep warm.

"On the coldest days I sometimes unsaddled my horse and sent him home, and I stayed in town...No one ever tried to stop Zero...They knew he was going home, and why." Each morning I mounted my horse with a sack of maize heads for his lunch, and my biscuits with sausage and jelly wrapped in a newspaper...paper sacks were a luxury then."

After graduating from high school, Mr. Slack entered W. T. S. C. but dropped out in Nov. He attended the University of Texas 3 years. While he was a junior he and Newton Harold toured the western states and Canada in a "Model T." Later, while attending the University of Oregon, he majored in Business Administration, and taught classes in Tumbling at which he had excelled while in T.U.

Burney got through college without any serious love affairs but later attended a Box Supper in the Pleasant View school house on Hackberry Draw, and met a southern belle from the state of Mississippi, who swept him completely off his feet.

Her name was Miss Clara Lou Hill, and she and Burney are very pround of their two sons Harold and Brice and their families. Burney and Clara Lou built their present home in 1960.

"We can never forget the more rugged years...like the time we were moving back to Canyon after a year with the Texas Employment Agency. Our entire possessions were lost when the truck hauling them overturned and burned...There was no insurance."

Mr. Slack was elected Judge of Randall Co. in 1935 and served also as County School Supt. through 1941. During this time there was no welfare agency. The W. P. A., C. C. C. Camps, and N. Y. A. were in operation. There were 22 school districts, 16 teachers and 15 school bus drivers. Four young men worked their way through college in Mr. Slack's office.

BURNEY SLACK

"Serving as County Judge during a depression has it's complications," stated Mr. Slack, "Many times strangers were stranded here and had to be supplied with enough gasoline to get them to other counties.

There was the woman who came into his office one day and declared, "I'm stranded here with 10 kids...What are you going to do about it?"

Mr. Slack has also served Randall as tax assessor and deputy sheriff. He is a supporter of Boy's Ranch, and continues to be active in civic affairs of his community. An active member and deacon of Canyon's First Baptist church, he is proud of the fact that he was baptized in a stock tank in 1915, by the late Rev. B. F. Fronabarger.

Today, Randall is a prosperous, productive progressive county; Yet, observing it's tall cottonwoods standing like monuments of courage and faith ...Should it not be remembered that they, together with dreams and visions of times like these.. ...were planted by such pioneering families as that of Burney Brice Slack.

Avent Lair Will Head Randall Cancer Group

L. E. Ross, cured cancer patient, spoke to the Randall County unit of the American Cancer Society at a meeting held Monday evening in the Fine Arts Building at West Texas State University.

Charles Wright and Kenneth Waugh met Ross at the state convention held in Dallas earlier this year, and applied to the state board for the speaking engagement.

"The pencil and pad are essential parts for communication when you have the larnyx removed," said Mr. Ross. "Learning to speak after the operation requires a strong motivation or desire to do so."

Some patients use an artificial larnyx and others make use of the available air bouncing over the scar tissue left from the operation to form words. The first sign of cancer in the larnyx is a constant hoarse voice. "I didn't see a doctor on my condition for six months, then it was too late for me," said Mr. Ross. He explained that it generally affects men, especially after they reach retirement age.

Ross is a self-taught esophageal speaker and is a teacher in this area to help the handicapped learn to speak again. Speech training is available only through a doctor's request.

During the business meeting, Avent Lair was elected to head the Randall County unit of the American Cancer Society for next year. Other officers elected were Dr. Leta Boswell, vice-president; Mrs. Frankie Swatzell, secretary; and James Cole, treasurer.

Kenneth Waugh, retiring president, announced that a total of $3,506.98 was contributed in this year's campaign, a 35 per cent increase over 1962. The goal for this year was $2700. Volunteers working on the campaign were 102, and they distributed 5-6 thousand pieces of literature on cancer.

Pauline Brigham and Mrs. John Jennings were the new members elected to the board. Board members re-elected were Charles Beckman, Dr. Leta Boswell, Mrs. Joe Findley, Mrs. John Hammond, Avent Lair, Dr. Ruth Lowes, Mrs. Gene McGlasson, Dr. Thomas MacOwen, Dr. Dudley Moore, Jr., Mrs. R. A. Neblett, Mrs. Ed Reynolds, Dr. Kenneth Waugh, and Mrs. Troy Martin.

An amendment to the by-laws was passed allowing the number of board members to range from 25-40 instead of 12-30. This amendment will be sent to the state board for approval and if passed, the following people will be new board members: Dr. Paige Carruth, Bob Hardy, and Mrs. Carmen Hernandez, (one year terms); Mrs. James Murphy White, Mrs. Clarence E. Thompson, Mrs. W. J. Wooten, and Jerry LaGrone, (two year terms).

Teacher Retiring After Forty Years In Service

BY JIM THOMAS

A garden party was given Saturday morning in honor of Mrs. Madge Culberson at the home of Mrs. A. C. Clark in Pioneer Estates.

The party was given in recognition of Mrs. Culberson's retirement from teaching after 40 years in the classroom.

Mrs. Culberson started teaching 40 years ago in a three teacher school in Childress County, where she grew up. She was once named woman of the year at Childress.

She attended high school at Childress and received her bachelor's degree from North Texas State College. She attended the George Peabody College for Teachers at Nashville, Tennessee, and the University of Colorado at Boulder, Colorado during summers. She received her masters degree in education from the University of Texas in 1951.

Mrs. Culberson was invited to come to the Canyon School system in 1956 to set up a special education program for students who needed individual attention with their school work. She had been principal of Wilson Elementary School in Childress before her change to Canyon.

"I left administrative work to enter the field of special education because I saw there were so many children that were in need of special training," she said. She has been in the Canyon school for seven years. She also taught special education at the campus school at Southwestern Teachers College in San Marcos, Texas.

Speaking of the special education efforts made by the Canyon school system, Mrs. Culberson says, "I think society has an obligation in regards to the teaching of children. I believe that every child should have an opportunity to learn at his own level.

"One of the greatest joys I've had has been working with these children. I'm thoroughly sold on the program and I feel it is a joy working with it."

Mrs. Culberson was elected Woman of the Year in Childress for 1950. The recognition came for her leadership in education and community service.

She says the first thing she is going to do when she retires in June is to give away her alarm clock.

"I want to rest. I then hope to have time for my marimba and I intend to try to be a better neighbor.

"I also hope to be able to travel some. I have relatives in different places and would like to visit some of them," she said.

Mrs. Culberson is an active member of the First Methodist Church of Canyon and is associated with several local, state and national professional organizations. These include the Texas and National Teachers Associations.

She is the past president of the Pi Chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society and she is the current president of the Canyon branch of the American Association of University Women.

Mrs. Madge Culberson was given a garden party last Saturday in the home of Mrs. A. C. Clark of Canyon. The party recognized 40 years of teaching by Mrs. Culberson. She retires from the Canyon school system in June.

HUNTING, FISHING AND CONSERVATION

The fish are really biting at Buffalo. Channel cats, crappie and even a very few bass are taking whatever is offered, according to the catches some of the folks are making.

J. N. Say of 706 Cleveland in Amarillo, caught a nice 5-pound channel cat while fishing Friday with his wife off the west bank of Buffalo about midway between the dam and the concessions area. He was using cut livers.

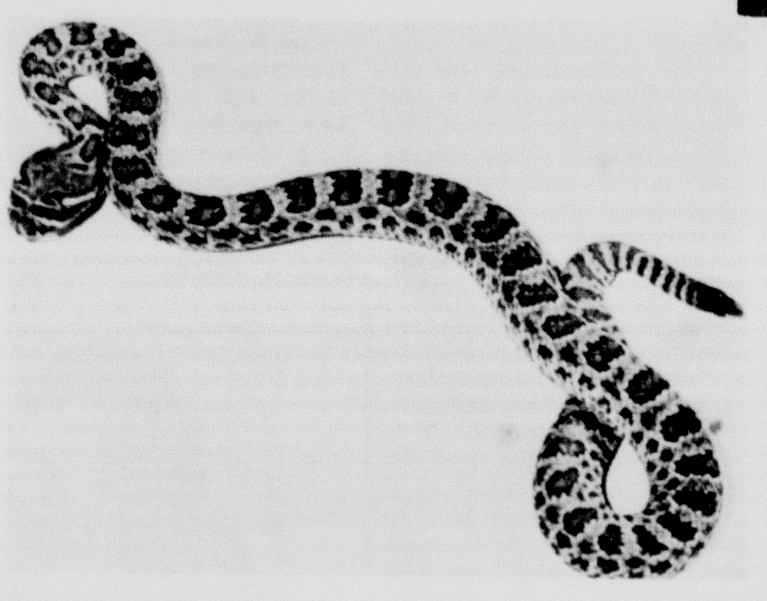
Many of the folks from the Canyon-Amarillo area have been fishing the tar out of the lake at night. Jack Metcalf and Jerry Swaringen caught some 10 cats Thursday night. The fish weighed between 2 and 3 pounds.

Lonnie Peters spent some time at the lake over the week end (game biologists do go fishing!!) and reports the crappie are really tearing up the lake. As consistent with other reports, Peters says the folks are pulling the crappie out of the lake by the bucketful.

The little fighters are staying in the deeper waters. Mostly down by the dam. Peters says he fished all up and down the shores and caught few if any worthwhile fish in shallow water but the fishing was pretty fair out in the cooler and deeper waters.

The lake has been dropping considerably the last few weeks, the little rain this weekend not helping a great deal. Peters, who is the man who knows, says the spawning potential for the crappie depends upon getting a good rise in the lake within the next few weeks. He says many of the crappie he caught were rutted with eggs and few were even beginning to reabsorb them.

The crappie and the carp probably won't start their spawn with any success unless the lake gets a good rise. Tomorrow or the next day---we hope.



For those who haven't seen this fellow before, he goes by the name of prairie rattler. He doesn't grow too big but he can do a heap of damage. They are usually dark tan with indistinct markings, a small head and don't always rattle. It isn't likely this little fellow could kill a man in good health if the man were to obtain treatment within a few hours, but he is still dangerous and can make a man very, very ill. Children could be killed by the bite from a prairie rattler. This one was found at Buffalo Lake Wildlife Refuge.

Speaking of carp, the Fish and Wildlife Service has made limited funds available for carp control at Buffalo. Peters and Brown of the refuge, met Monday morning to try to plan a carp control program for the end of this month or the first week in June when the carp start to spawn.

Peters and Brown will meet with the Randall County Sportsman's Club tonight in L. J. Witkowski's camp trailer store on 23rd street to discuss the possibility of using the aid of the club in the carp control project.

The way it stands now, the sportsmen, possibly working with the cooperation and boats of the Panhandle Boat and Skiing Club, will help by concentrating on the carp as they try to swim up the creeks and mud flats at the upper end of the lake.

For those who like to wade into a school of milling carp with a short club -- this will be their meat ---fish. The old club method is sometimes the most effective and certainly the cheapest method of slowing up the carp population in a lake like Buffalo. The boats will be used to pick up the dead carp. They probably will be loaded on trucks for dumping someplace away from where they can be smelled. Those interested should attend the Sportsman's Club meeting tonight.

Unless the lake rises at least a foot in the next few weeks, whatever spawning the fish do stands little hope for success. There are few weeds and little brush below the present waterline. The success of the spawn depends upon the fish laying their eggs on the flooded vegetation. Eggs have a habit of getting covered with mud when laid on the bottom. Eggs laid on the shoreline will be left high and dry as the lake recedes. Hope for a rise.

Water safety is still a big problem at Buffalo. One boater nearly lost it last week end by falling out of his boat. Don't expect the lake patrol to protect you. They can only try to hold down the speeding and drunken boat driving.

It is pretty hard to protect a man from himself. Please be careful with your boat. If every careless boater had to watch the dragging operations for drowning victims or if they had to pay for the damage their carelessness causes --- there might be less carelessness and more carefulness. Y'all come.

Bear Grass Was Food For Plains Indians

BY JIM THOMAS

Old timers called it bear-grass, though it isn't a grass and really had nothing to do with bears.

Yucca, often known as bear-grass, is one of the best known and most plentiful plants in the drier portions of the Southwest. The Texas Panhandle has more than its share of the interesting plants.

Also known as narrow-leaf yucca, Our Lord's Candle, Spanish Dagger, soapweed and Spanish bayonet, the common yucca plant has a long history, much of it centering around the early Plains Indians and the European pioneers.

To the Great Plains Indians, whose nomadic life forced them to take life as they found it, the yucca was often the difference between a prosperous year or a poor one.

The yucca was an important part of their survival. It provided soap when they needed it, fibers for their ropes and bridles, cloth for their matting, sandals and even thread for sewing.

Fibers were made from the leaves of the yucca by cutting each leaf off near its base, splitting it length-wise and drying it in the sun. The hot Plains sun dried the fleshy parts of the leaf, leaving the hard, tough fibers. Each plant has several dozen leaves with several hundreds of fibers per leaf.

The yucca leaf fibers have long been used by the Indians of the Southwest for fabricating their ropes, matting, sandals, basketry and coarse cloth. The smallest roots of the yucca are redish in color and were often woven into the sides of the baskets, tops of the sandals and parts of their horse bridals for added color effect and to create designs.

Roots of the yucca have a detergent quality and today are still gathered by some of the Southwestern Indian tribes for soap.

The yucca blossom is also the state flower of New Mexico where the plant is even more prolific than in Texas. The yuccas, of which there are several types in the Southwest, are often mixed up with the Agaves, better known as the century plant; the Dasylirion or sotol and the Nolina, also called bear-grass.

The Texas version of the yucca, specifically Yucca elata, has long, thin, deep green leaves with a dark brown spine or thorn at the very tip of each leaf. Yucca elata can usually be recognized by an inspection of the leaf which has small, white fibers appearing along the length of each side of each leaf, The string-like fibers give a fuzzy appearance to the edges of the leaves.

In many grasslands of Texas, the yucca is the only sizeable plant to be seen for miles. Including the flower stalk, yucca elata often stands some six feet above the prairie.

Yucca have been used in times of extreme drought as a supplemental food for range livestock. The chopped stems were mixed with such concentrated cattle feeds as cotton seed meal and dried maize.

The leaves of yucca were used as a substitute for jute during world war II when rope material was in extremely short supply.

Plains Indians have been known to subsist on the young flower stalks when better foods were not available as during dry periods on the Plains. The stalks are fast-growing and are relatively tender.

In a real pinch, the Indians used the very heart of the yucca for food. The tender center was cut out, quartered, sized and then dried in the sun or over fires. After drying, it was ground into a flourlike powder, washed, redried and baked into hardtack or what the pioneers called Johnny breads. If cooked promptly it made a nourishing, though soapy meal.

The yucca plays an interesting partnership with a common moth of the genus Pronuba. The moth, visiting the flowers of the yucca at night, collects the sticky yucca pollen from the male anthers of the yucca flower, rolls the pollen into a tight little ball and tucks it under its chin.

It then carries the pollen ball to the pistil of the flower, which is its female organ and deposits the pollen on the pistil, thus fertilizing the flower.

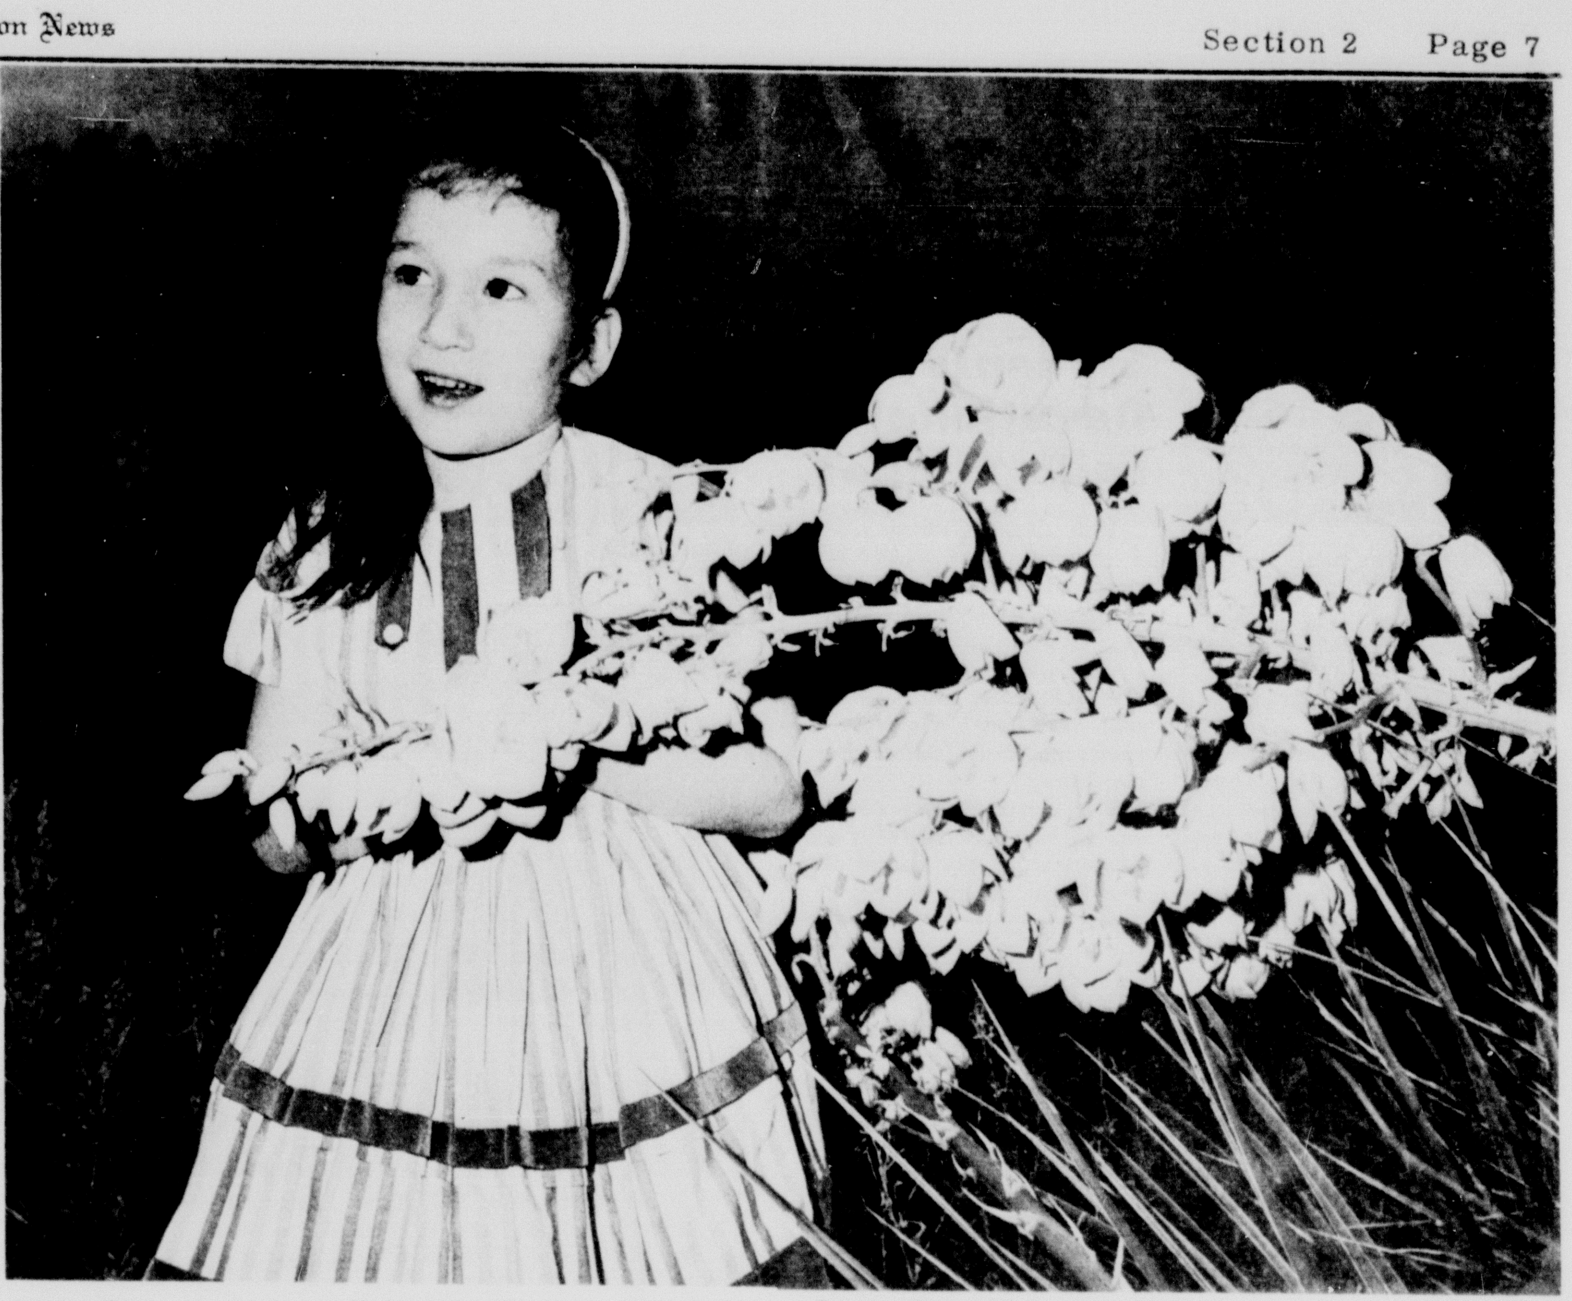
After fertilizing the flower, the moth lays its eggs in the base of the ovary where the flower's seed will develop. As the moth's eggs develop, they feed upon the seeds of the flower, thus completing its share in the strange partnership. The yucca repays its partner by feeding its larva some of its seeds.

Neither the yucca plant nor the moth could survive without one another.

In many of the yuccas, the flowers grow as great spreading plumes of large, delicate blooms. It is an old tale in the Southwest that these graceful flowers appear in the moonlight as if aglow with "an inner light." Thus the name "Our Lord's Candle."

Blooming in tight greenish-yellow clusters at the end of a long stalk growing from the center of the plant, the flowers appear at different times, usually every other year depending upon rainfall and termperature.

Birds, small animals, lizards and snakes and many species of insects used the yucca plant as home. The plant provides food, shelter and materials with which to build a nest.



Pretty flowers and a pretty little girl make a nice springtime scene overlooking Palo Duro Canyon. Neccia Hoskins, 6 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Hoskins of Palo Duro Canyon State Park, stands among some of the many yucca blooms that are brightening the slopes of the Great Plains. Yucca blooms are among the most attractive of Texas flowers.

Firemen On Three Calls

Canyon firemen answered two grass fire calls and one emergency unit call to Buffalo Lake during the week.

A right-of-way fire along the Santa Fe Railroad Wednesday evening of last week 2 miles north of Ralph Switch and another fire set by lightning during a thunder storm Saturday afternoon, occupied the firemen. The lightning fire was on the Beaumont Stinnet Ranch 18 miles southwest of Canyon.

The emergency unit call was the result of a boating accident at Buffalo Lake Saturday afternoon when Buck Waldern of Friona, fell from a moving boat, injuring his back and shoulder. He was treated at Neblett Hospital and released.

Exchange Student To Speak

A fellowship supper will be held Sunday evening at the Fellowship Hall of the First Methodist Church at 6:30 p.m.

GOOD LUCK CLASS OF '63

We join your family, friends and this entire community in wishing each of you well in whatever endeavor you may plan for the future. Your graduation is an important achievement and, if you want it to be, the first step toward greater ones. We would also impress upon you the importance of this day for another reason. Education, as we know it, is the foundation of democracy and the American concept of liberty. James Russell Lowell expressed it eloquently: "It was in making education not only common to all, but in some sense compulsory on all, that the destiny of the free republics of America was practically settled."

In other words, only an educated people treasure and strive for freedom. Contrary to what the propagandists preach, the great masses of the communist world are not educated. The selected few are allowed to continue their education after elementary school and enter a profession of their choice. You, on the other hand, have a free choice and thus become the master of your own destiny. You are, then, the master of the destiny of your country. What it will become in the next two or three decades depends almost entirely upon you. To keep your heritage, your freedom, and self respect will require your greatest effort. We wish you well and ask God's blessing upon your endeavors.

Haley Tells Of Days As Cowboy In Arizona

BY JIM THOMAS

"I broke my arm one day when I got jerked off my horse while roping another horse. It jerked the saddle right off the horse I was riding and broke my arm.

I stayed in town for about six weeks. I went back to the wagon as soon as they took the cast off. It slowed me up a bit."

The above is part of the story of a soft spoken Canyon man who spent several years of his youth working for an Arizona cattle company. His name is Arthur Charles "Jack" Haley, Jr., better known as Jack Haley.

He worked for the Arizona Livestock Company of Seligman, Arizona, one of the largest cattle companies in the Southwest. Seligman was a small cattle town of about 500 population and a division point for the Santa Fe Railroad Company in the high grass and brush country of Northwestern Arizona.

The ranch was located about 100 miles west of Flagstaff, and consisted of about 3500 sections of grasslands controlled under direct lease and ownership.

The first year I worked for the ranch I was a cowboy with the west wagon, branding and gathering yearlings. The second year they put me in the line camp for nearly a year, watching after cattle and riding fence in my area.

"The only visitors I saw were the ranch manager once every two or three weeks or when the wagon came through.

"When the west wagon came by in my country, I worked with it through my territory.

"It was 15 miles to the nearest camp. Each man was responsible for about 300 sections of grazing land and about 1,000 head of cattle depending on where they were pastured. We had nine line camps with about 1,000 head of cattle to each camp.

"Some of the camps had more territory than others. Some pasture was in pretty open country with lots of grass and could support more cattle.

"My camp was in the mountains up about 6,000 feet. Sometimes there was a lot of snow--when it snowed. There wasn't a lot of rain. We had about 10 or 12 inches a year.

"The camp where I stayed had a well and windmill. That was all the water there was. The rest was all behind dams in the canyons and draws.

"I spent one whole winter working cattle on Havasupai Creek off the south rim of Grand Canyon. We moved the cattle out just on the south rim of the canyon in early Fall.

"It was pretty good grass in winter. Lots of rough country. Down in the canyons and draws there was a lot of brush and philoree grass. The cattle wintered pretty good there.

"It didn't get too cold either. Actually it was about like it is here in winter.

"The only visitors we had that winter were the Supai Indians. They let their cattle graze up there from the canyon and they came up there to get them.

"There was only one trail down from the canyon rim into the canyon---13 miles from where we were to the Supai village in the bottom. The only way down to the village was to walk or ride a mule.

"They carried the mail twice a week by mule from the north rim of Havasupai Canyon to the village. Havasupai Canyon is one of the tributaries to Grand Canyon. They raised cattle and goats and lots of fruit down there in Havasupai Canyon.

"We worked cattle from before dawn to after dark every day and when we got through we headed for the wagon to eat and bed down for the night.

"Emmett Sparks, our cookie with the west wagon, had a fiddle he could play pretty well. He would play it every night we could talk him into it.

"We just listened to his western fiddle playing out there. He was a pretty good fiddle player.

"The company gave all the cowboys a week off on the Fourth of July. Most of us went to the rodeo in Prescott, a town of five or six thousand people. It's probably a lot bigger now.

"The ranch controlled all the grasslands north of the Santa Fe Railroad through Seligman to the south rim of Grand Canyon, a distance of about 60 miles. The ranch went to the west of Seligman all the way to the Hualapai Indian reservation, about 23 miles, and to the east of Seligman another 25 miles. All totaled about 3,500 sections, I think.

"We ran some eight or nine thousand breeding cattle and branded some 7,500 calves each year. We ran the two wagons all year, too.

"A wagon consisted of the chuckwagon, a cookie and a flunkie, a horse wrangler, wagon boss and about 10 cowboys. Each cowboy used about 10 or 12 head of horses which belonged to the ranch, but for which he was responsible.

"The horses were kept in the wagon remuda where the wrangler had charge. It was his job to catch the horses each morning for the cowboys. Johnny Hualapai was the name the wrangler went by. I never knew his last name. He was a Hualapai Indian from the reservation.

"Each cowboy used his own personal saddle and had his own bedroll and sometimes a tent... The cowboys used nearly every kind of western saddle they could get, especially Porters made in Phoenix and Myers made in El Paso.

"The ranch had a general foreman that lived at the headquarters in Seligman. There were two wagon bosses, one for the east side of the ranch and one for the west side. My father, Arthur G. Haley, was wagon boss on the west side. I worked on the west side of the ranch only--never on the east side. My father ran the west side for four years.

"After I started school at West Texas in 1938, I only worked on the ranch in summers. The summer of 1939 I spent breaking horses. Another cowboy and I broke 60 horses that summer. That's when I broke my arm.

"I finished college at West Texas in 1942, and went into the Naval Air Force where I was trained as a dive bomber pilot. I served in the Pacific, mostly as landing signal officer on the U.S.S. Copahee, a aircraft carrier. I ended the war as an instructor at Melbourne Naval Air Station in Florida.

"We returned to Canyon in 1945 where I went to work for the Canyon News in the back shop. I bought a 1/3 interest in the News in 1946 and all of it in 1955. I sold the News in 1960 and kept the printing and office supply part which is now the Haley Printing and Office Supply Company."

Haley said he was raised in Bailey County where his dad had a ranch. They lived near Muleshoe from 1921 until 1936 when the family moved to Arizona.

Jack Haley looks over some photographs of his early days on the Arizona grasslands. Haley worked for the Arizona Livestock Company near Seligman, Arizona, as a cowboy, line camp rider and horse breaker. He said he didn't keep his saddle or camping gear from his cowboy days. "When I quit running cattle, I really quit," he says.

Visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Miller last week were Mrs. Bill Key and Mrs. Sidney Key of Moses Lake, Washington.

Visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Winters are Mrs. Bob Wilkerson of Burbank, California, Mrs. Bill Smith of Newhall, California; and Mrs. Robert Wilkerson of Solvang, California.

Fullback Situation Is Bright Says WT Coach

BY MIKE MOON

Optimism still rides high! Coach Howard White echoed the continual strains of "whatta year we're going to have in '63" during his being interviewed concerning the fullback situation in the West Texas State football camp for next season.

"Fullback is one of our strong positions--we have good ball carriers good blocking, and staright ahead power," commented White. "The boys possess some elusiveness, reasonable speed, and good ground defense--the pass defense is the worst aspect of the lot. They have the ability, they just have not learned it."

White tabs Ollie Ross as the best all-around fullback on the squad. Ross and Russell Mundy are top picks for the starting position with Mundy doing most of the starting last season.

"In consistency has been the main problem," continued White, "when Ross is off, Mundy is hot. When both are off, things like the Arizona University happen to us!"

The big games for the two block-bustin' backs came against Arizona State for Mundy when he carried the Buffs on a field-length sustained drive throughout the fourth period to keep the Sun Devils from getting the ball and with seconds left, was knocking on the scoreboard door.

Ross was the big gun the big night of homecoming against Preacher Pilot and New Mexico State. Ross gained 143 yards and rambled continually through Coach Warren Woodson's hearlded "Comancheros" defensive unit.

Another big factor in the fullback spot for the next season is the return of Bill Lorance who was the team's second leading ground-gainer to Pedro two seasons ago. Lorance will, among other things, serve to push Ross and Mundy to greater things.

As a summary to the situation, Ross and Lorance should be the big all-around backs while Mundy is the top offensive threat.

BOBBY ARTHUR: With one letter to his credit, Arthur will probably improve more this season since his being converted from guard to fullback. He is a 6-0, 205-pound junior from Pampa. He has pretty good speed and movement with his big asset being his tremendous desire to play. He is a very good blocker for a fullback but hasn't been a very good ball-carrier due to his being a former guard. With his strength in his blocking, his weakness is in his pass defense. He shows potential as a ball carrier but needs work. His forward and lateral speed is good but has trouble with his backward and sideward movements.

BILL LORANCE: Lorance is like Arthur in that they both run the 40-yard dash in five seconds flat, was a red-shirt last season and will be playing as a senior next fall. He has earned one letter with the Buffs in the 1961 season. Lorance gained over 400 yeards total yardage, second only to Pedro's 966 which was second best in the nation. He is tabbed as an outstanding ball player who carried the load when he was playing. He has good mental toughness and likes to hit, loves contact and is a better than average ball-carrier. He's the kind of ball player that likes to run over the opposition instead of around, he's not too elusive. He's an adequate blocker but needs improvement in pass defense, he's good when it comes to stopping the run. He's 6-0, 205 and hails from Irving.

RUSSELL MUNDY: Mundy is hailed as a tremendous offensive runner with strength and elusiveness. He may be the quickest full back in America according to Coach White. He is 5-9 and weighs 200 pounds, is a junior next fall, has one letter, and is from Harrisburg, Pa. Mundy has good lateral movement and has never been a fumbler. He is probably the best corner man on the run in that he can play in one corner of the field and stop the play dead in the middle of the line or trap the quarterback in the backfield. Russ is ideally fitted to play the type of defense we call for. He could become one of the best fullbacks in America and is a DEFINITE pro prospect. Coach White likens Mundy unto the Jim Brown type of football player. He can run the 40-yard dash in 4.9 seconds.

OLLIE ROSS: As a senior in college, Ross has the distinction of already being drafted by the San Francisco 49'ers pro football team as a "future." He is 6-0 and 215 and has earned two letters. He is also from Harrisburg. He was red-shirted one year at Palo Verde JC in California. He's not quite as quick a starter as Russ but if he is given room to run he is very powerful. Ross is fast enough to get the job done. He's a good blocker and has the best knowledge of offense and defense of the other fullbacks. He gets the job done against the run and is more likely to be where he should be than the others. Ross' strong point is his phenomenal kicking ability. During the 1961 season, the Buffs were penalized five yards for off-sides, and Ross kicked off from the 35-yard line and booted the ball through the uprights and onto the dirt embankment over 80-yards away! He already excels other players and most pro kickers with his talents, and he may kick some extra points and field goals for the Buffs next season.

Babe Ruth League Off To Good Season Start

BY DR. GEORGE de SCHWEINITZ

After three Saturdays of play, three games each Saturday, the Randall County Babe Ruth League is off to a flying start.

Even the League champions of 1962, the Cardinals under the management of Earl Byerley, have been defeated once, the newly admitted Umbarger team defeating the Cardinals 5-3 last Saturday. Umbarger manager is Bernard Hartman. With one or two exceptions the games have been close and fairly well played this year, pointing to a season of the close competition. The Cardinals had won two games, the previous two Saturdays, by identical 6-5 scores, triumphing over the Giants on May 11 and the Pirates on May 4.

Roy Forehand's Pirates, with Rossi and Gardner as battery mainstays, lost another close one, 2-0, to Happy on May 11, then came back on May 18 to defeat the Giants 11-3, as Bruce Winn had a discouraging first inning.

Happy, in turn, after two victories under the inspired twirling of Culp, lost to Eddie Holcomb's White Sox by a 9-2 score.

Burt Lemon, coach of the Happy Yankees, has fielded a formidable team in this the second year of competition for his town. Thus only one team is still without a victory, the Giants under Bill Holmes; but this team has a good potential with veterans like Winn, McAtte and Jack Stephens and rookies like Johnny Harper and David Yarbrough.

The standings to date are as follows:

Happy Yankees	2 wins one loss
Cardinals	2 wins one loss
Umbarger	2 wins one loss
White Sox	2 wins one loss
Pirates	one win two losses
Giants	no wins three losses

Allen Simpson, Canyon High School basketball coach, John Cook, Crowe-Gulde Cement company; Duane Guy, West Texas State associate professor of history; and Roscoe Richardson, farm supply distributor have so far divided the duties of umpiring behind the plate.

C. B. Read and Howard White have generously worked in this capacity.

For this job more volunteers are needed to take up the slack when night play begins, as it will the last week of May.

Also base umpires are needed for each game. Fathers of players are urged to help out by calling George de Schweinitz, OL5-2572, to volunteer their services for this job. Without such volunteer services a fine League such as the Babe Ruth cannot well continue. With upwards of a hundred boys involved, every bit of help is respectfully and urgently requested. Also passing the hat for expenses, lights, equipment, water, and many other such items that mount up, is necessary, and the League officials ask that spectators respond according to the value they place upon giving such boys a regular and systematized play opportunity for six to ten weeks.

Don Olson, John Miller, and Curtis Butler have helped in the demanding task of keeping the Park in its present excellent condition. Hence their names belong with Dr. Dudley Moore's, George Stevens', L. D. Winn's Earnest Huckaba's, and Joe Abbott's.

The schedule next Saturday calls for two games in Canyon, one in Umbarger, as follows:

3:30 White Sox vs Cardinals
7:30 Happy vs. Giants
7:30 Pirates AT Umbarger

KEEPING UP WITH THE ARTS

Remember the day when life was rather simple for the person who was shopping for fabrics or clothing. When you went out to purchase something, you had in your mind a variety of things, but usually in connection with cotton, wool, rayon, or silk. The color was important, the texture, the weight, and the time of year had a great bearing on your choice. You didn't have to worry too much about nylon since this was usually found in parachutes or hosiery.

But things have really changed! You must study, examine and be an expert in fabrics of today's world. I would say that it is all almost too much for the average person. But then you may be above the average and not let it bother you at all.

The most popular names in the ads today are: dacron, lycra, spandex, polyester, Avron, arnel, triacetate, everglaze, helanca, orlon, acrylic, estron acetate, bemberg cupioni, sharkskin, chemstrand nylon, lastex, fiberglass, celanese acetate, ban lon, etc., plus hundreds of others. There are the combinations of these, the combinations of weaving. Then to make it more interesting, there are the trade names attached to each of the fabrics.

Plus exotic colors, you will find---Chardon-Marche silk, Mongashel linen, Herbert Meyer linen-like blend of cotton, rayon, and silk. Alamac knits, Triumph XI, 65% Dacron and 35% Cotton Chino, Bianchini Silk, Couture silk, Gourdon cotton, Abraham fabric, Onondaga textured silk, Tycora nylon print, and so on for another hundred or so...

Amarillo Man Found Guilty In Court Here

In one of the most unusual cases ever tried in county court here, a South Amarillo man was found guilty Monday of vagrancy by prostitution.

Bill Stevens specifically was charged with vagrancy by prostitution. A six-man jury found Stevens guilty and assessed his fine at $200.

The defendant's attorney immediately gave notice of appeal. Stevens is a former Amarillo bail bondsman and manager of an Amarillo apartment house.

The incident from which the charges arose was alleged to have taken place in an apartment in South Amarillo Jan. 22.

The case was heard in county court here on a appeal from Amarillo corporation court.

Pot Luck Supper Social Is Held
